CHAMPAIGN – Edwardsville's Noah Surtin has accomplished something no individual Tiger wrestler has done before.

Win a state championship.

Surtin won the 113-pound title at Saturday's 82nd IHSA Wrestling Championship individual finals at State Farm Center when he defeated Lombard Montini's Dylan Ragusin in a 7-6 decision to claim the title.

Surtin's title wasn't the only accomplishment for the Tigers on the day; Luke Odom finished third at 126 pounds by going through Saturday's wrestlebacks, starting with a 8-4 decision over Huntley's Zach Spencer in a semifinal bout, then taking a 2-0 decision over Montini's Dylan Burnoski in the third-place bout, while Josh Anderson, wrestling at 220, was eliminated in the second round of wrestlebacks when he was pinned in 2:56 by Carol Stream Glenbard North's Quintin Terry.

"It's a proud moment for me as a coach, for Noah and for the Edwardsville wrestling program," said Tiger coach Jon Wagner Saturday night. "Noah's worked really hard and lived a wrestling lifestyle; it's proof that hard work and effort does pay off. I'm really proud of Noah, Luke and Josh for everything they've accomplished this year; they've all worked hard to get to where they're at right now."

Edwardsville's wrestlers weren't the only ones representing the area at the state meet; here's a look at how area wrestlers fared over the weekend:

Alton's Courteney Wilson also wrestled at the state meet, representing the Redbirds at 152 pounds; Wilson, however, was eliminated Friday in the opening round of wrestlebacks after being defeated in Thursday's opening round.
